

Comment to the book

Civil liability in dermatology and aesthetic medicine

In the era of "Aesthetic Medicine", in these years in which this medical field exploded and "monsters" are treated by inexpert doctors while the good one sometimes are involved in wrong judgments about materials or not sufficiently valid treatment, in this era, Legal Medicine faces this delicate aspect and has a very important role, both for patients and for doctors, who are together because of their common goal: naturalness and safety.

Preparation, courses, theory and practice learned with diligence by professionals above any materials and personal interest and the passion for the discipline are fundamental for doctors. It is also fundamental for patients, to go to qualified people. In this branch in fact beside knowing the materials and techniques, there is also another aspect, not really qualifiable, that characterizes the protagonists of this field, the personal talent, the individual art that cannot be taught, you just have to have it. The art to correct but not twist, the art of modesty and naturalness of results, the art of "I know where I need to stop". As every other book written by Lawyers and legal doctors, it is not really easy to understand but it is very useful in case of controversies. Hoping you can read it not for personal purposes.

A. Redaelli